ROYAL NAVY

The Fleet Abroad

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18.
The 160 war vessels now moored at Spithead for the Jubilee Review, while they represent the principal fighting strength of the Navy, amount to less than half of its numerical strength. There are on the effective list some 370 vessels. About 150, or nearly as many as are at the Review, are now serving on foreign stations. This includes the Dominion Navies. The balance of about 60 is represented by ships under repair in the dockyards or laid up with care-and-maintenance parties.

It would not be possible to assemble more than the total of ships now at Spithead without interfering with the regular work of the Navy. At the present time, the bulk of the Mediterranean Fleet has come home, there are still about 32 seagoing units there; 13 of them are making a cruise to French and Italian ports under the command of Rear-Admiral G. H. D'O. Lyon, now at Split (Spalato), in the Adriatic, in H.M.S. Delhi. About 57 vessels are in China, including 18 river gunboats in the Yangtze and West River. Seven ships are in the East Indies and Persian Gulf, five on the Africa Station, and seven on the America and West Indies Station. Surveying ships are at work off Trinidad, Colombo, Singapore, and Cyprus. The Canadian Navy accounts for seven, the Australian for five, and the Royal Indian Navy for 10.

THE ARMY

Is It All Right?

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18.
Some seventy thousand enthusiastic spectators would have shouted a "yes" to that question, after Saturday's brilliant show at Aldershot. It was a magnificent display. It is to be followed, as a picture, by the companion piece of a naval review.

Far be it from us to depreciate the effectiveness, as spectacles, of these parades. Nor would it be just to do so, even from the sterner utilitarian point of view. Indeed, there were at least two sorts of armies at Aldershot.

There was the Army of yesterday and the day before and all the days right back to Waterloo or beyond: the gallant, chivalrous equipment of infantry lines, cavalry brigades—the great march past illustrating the art of war as it once was and as we heartily wish it could have remained. Unfortunately there are many gallant soldiers who eternally imagine that war has remained like that. These went on imagining all through the Great War. That gives a reason for the four and a half years of stalemate in incessant slaughter.

War is what it is, first.

Then, at Aldershot also, war as it may be.

This is the mechanized "scientific" war—represented chiefly by the crawling tanks, huge reptiles of the field, fuming and stinking. Not pleasant. Not so gallant in aspect. Yet we ought to have had them—we could have had them.

If the cavalry mind had permitted them in 1914, instead of waiting to muddle them until 1915 on the Somme.

And who can say that these monsters will be as effective as they now look in a new war?

They too may be out of date when the bombs begin falling out of the air. They are mechanical, certainly. Are they chemical enough?

We shall not know until experience provides the answer.

YOVELLING AT VICTORIA

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18.
Contingents of folk dancers from all over Europe converged on London to-day for the great International Folk-Dance Festival, which opens to-morrow with a parade in Hyde Park. A long procession of youths and young women garbed in the traditional peasant dress of their countries enlivened Victoria Station during the day, and although the festival does not begin officially until to-morrow, some of the Swiss yodelers thought it expedient to let London know they had arrived. Fraulein Rolf set the example with a long-drawn call of greeting which, echoed through the station. Others of the group joined in this voluble "hail" to Britain, and the pleasant-if somewhat startling—Sunday afternoon entertainment for waiting passengers was later enriched by an honest reply in kind from the railway porters, whose yodeling, if lacking in artistic finish, was certainly sincere and mirth-provoking.

NAVAL ATTACHE FOR SAIM

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18.
The King has approved the appointment of Commander G. R. G. Allen, O.B.E., R.N., as Naval Attaché to H.M. Legation at Bangkok, Siam. This is the first time a Naval Attaché has been appointed to Siam. The principal vessels of the Siamese Navy are British-built, and one, the destroyer, Phra Ruang, served in the British Navy during the War as H.M.S. Radiant, and was purchased by Siam in 1920.

Commander Allen has hitherto been staff officer for operations at the Singapore naval base.

WAR-DANGER WARNING

Foreign Secretary Defends British Policy

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18. Clear warning of the existing danger of war in Europe was a prominent feature of the first speech of Sir Samuel Hoare as Foreign Secretary last night in a crowded House of Commons.

The Minister made direct and dramatic appeals to Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini. After explaining that the Government favoured an Eastern Air Pact because the Middle East of Europe was a danger point of war, Sir Samuel strongly urged Germany to join it. "It is now in the power of the German Chancellor," he said, "to make, and to make easily, a real contribution to the cause of peace, a contribution which will remove the cause of anxiety from the minds of many Governments all over Europe. I would urge him to make it."

Sir Samuel denied Italian statements that Britain was thinking of her colonial interests in Abyssinia or contemplating direct action against Italy. Britain, he said, admitted the need for Italian expansion and the criticisms made against Abyssinia, but questioned that these facts justified plunging into a war.

The Italian, French, Russian, and other European Ambassadors were in the Distinguished Strangers' Gallery and listened intently to the speech.

Sir Samuel Hoare said the Great War left an impoverished, apprehensive, and suspicious world, and it left most people convinced that peace was a single whole, for it was that conception that underlay the League of Nations.

Referring to the Anglo-German naval agreement, he said it was in no sense a selfish one, and there seemed to him overwhelming reasons why, in the interests of peace, they should seize the opportunity offered to them.

Further, it led to the declaration of the German delegates which would eliminate the unrestricted use of submarines, which seemed on naval grounds manifestly to the advantage of other naval Powers, including France. The Government had no apologies to make for a practical all-round contribution to peace.

They were anxious for an air pact accompanied by air limitation, but if there was to be an air pact the five Powers, including France and Germany, must agree to it. It was therefore necessary to bring all five into the negotiations and to bring them eventually to an agreement.

EUROPE'S DANGER POINT
Some people might ask what had Great Britain to do with an Eastern Pact or with the integrity of Austria.

"There are many Governments in Europe," said Sir Samuel, "I need not name them, that regard the Centre and East of Europe as the danger-point."

He agreed that a war started in the Centre or East of Europe might lead to a general conflagration, and on that account it was essential to deal without delay with any danger-point that existed. That was why the Government were anxious to see an Eastern and Danubian pact of non-aggression concluded at the earliest possible moment.

PLEA TO GERMANY
The German Chancellor had stated that his Government were ready to conclude pacts of non-aggression with their individual neighbours, and to supplement them by every provision aimed at isolating the combatants and localising the war-makers. The Danubian Pact was susceptible of similar treatment. It was now in the power of the German Chancellor to make, and to make easily, a real contribution to the cause of peace. "I would venture to urge him to make it," added Sir Samuel, "I think, indeed, he would be serving his own cause by making it."

By concluding the naval agreement with the German Chancellor we had taken a step forward on the road to conciliation.

"Let him now take the necessary step forward and help on the negotiations of the Eastern and Danubian Pacts, thereby giving a great impulse to the conclusions of an air pact, which I know he desires."

INTEGRITY OF AUSTRIA
Referring to the independence and integrity of Austria, Sir Samuel said that country occupied strategically and economically a key position in Europe, and a change in her status would shake the foundations of European peace.

They would therefore continue to take the closest and most sympathetic interest in the courageous efforts that her Government and her people were making to maintain and strengthen her independent existence. That was one of the reasons why the British Government would like to see a Danubian Pact of non-aggression and non-interference concluded for Central Europe.

The Government intended to practise realism, and would be lacking in their duty to collective peace if they failed to do so. That brought him to the key of collective security, to the League of Nations and the British attitude towards it.

Over and over again they had stated, and no one better than the Prime Minister, Britain's fidelity to the League and its principles, and he reaffirmed it that day.

ABYSSINIAN CRISIS

They were in duty bound to do their utmost to prevent the development of any crisis that was likely to weaken or destroy the principles upon which the League was built, and upon which its influence for peace depended. That was the reason for their grave interest in the Abyssinian controversy.

"Here in this House," said Sir Samuel, "I need not repeat in any detail the complete contradiction that we have given to the wild statements as to our motives and our action that have been made in certain sections of the Italian press."

"We have no ulterior motive but the motives of a peaceful settlement, and the statements that we are thinking of our own Colonial interest and that we are massing troops in the neighbouring British Colonies are completely devoid of foundation."

"I trust that my contradiction will be given the fullest possible publicity in any Italian papers that made themselves responsible for these groundless charges."

ITALY AND EXPANSION

"I should like also to make it clear that we have always understood and well understand Italy's desire for overseas expansion. Indeed, we have in the past done our best to show our sympathy with Italian aspirations in a practical way. In 1925 we ceded Jubaland to Italy, and in the present negotiations we showed our willingness to endeavour to ensure for Italy some territorial satisfaction by a reasonable and legitimate arrangement with Abyssinia."

"We admit the need for Italian expansion. We admit again the justice of some of the criticisms that have been made against the Abyssinian Government, but are the facts that Italy needs expansion and that complaints are made against the Abyssinian Government sufficient cause for plunging into a war?"

TO PREVENT WAR

"We have surely found in the past that it is possible to adjust demands and differences of this kind without recourse to war, and I am not prepared even now to abandon any chance that may present itself for averting what I believe will be a calamity."

"In the meanwhile let members dismiss from their minds the rumours, altogether without foundation, that we have asked the French Government to join in a blockade of Italy, and that we ourselves are preparing some isolated form of coercion against a country that has been our friend, since the Risorgimento. We stand for peace, and we will not abandon any reasonable chance that may offer itself for helping to prevent a disastrous war."

Referring to the Port of Zella, Sir Samuel said the Government felt that they took the only course open to them. It was an obligation upon them to make constructive proposals to avoid what they believed would be a calamity.

"He was glad Mr. Eden made that proposal, and he thought that if it had reached a point when it would have been submitted to the House, and to our treaty partners, time out of mind would have rejoiced with him."

CHEAPER POSTAL CHARGES

To The Empire

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18.

A three-halfpenny air post to almost every part of the British Empire is promised within two years.

It will be no fault of Sir Frederic Williamson, the Director of Postal Services, if this aim is not realised even earlier.

Sir Frederic has just returned from a tour of Canada, India, Australia and New Zealand.

He has discussed the plans for faster and cheaper air services with responsible Colonial statesmen and officials, and is full of optimism as a result.

To prevent time being lost in correspondence about details, he travelled 29,000 miles—about 12,000 by air.

"ACROSS A TABLE"

His party, numbering four, included two representatives of the Air Ministry.

"The scheme the British Government has prepared is extremely elaborate and complicated," Sir Frederic told an "Evening News" representative. "You cannot deal with a thing of such magnitude merely by despatches."

"We were able to clear up points of discussion that would have lasted weeks, in a talk across a table in a few minutes."

"We flew first to India and had an extremely useful discussion with the Government of India. Then we went on to Australia and New Zealand, and we came back via America and Canada."

THE NEW SERVICES

"Everywhere we found the greatest enthusiasm for the scheme, and when it is fully working it will mean revolutionary changes. There has been nothing like it in the history of postal communications."

"We hope to have two air mails a week to Australia, with a link to New Zealand."

"Three a week to the Straits Settlements."

"Four or five a week to India; and

"Three a week to Kenya, with two of them going on to Capetown."

"We expect to do the Australia journey in seven days, New Zealand, with a link from Sydney, eight; and India in three days."

"The question of Canada is still under discussion. Already Canada has extensive air mail services right up to the Arctic circle, which she is hoping to develop."

"So far as India, Australia, and Africa are concerned, we are pressing forward with plans for improving aerodromes and ground organisation."

relations with Russia were now better than they ever had been since the Government was established. Sir Samuel said he need not underline the capital importance they attached to friendly relations with Japan.

He would not be frank, however, if he did not say that the friends of Japan in this country had been disturbed and disquieted by certain recent events in North China. He trusted that that chapter of anxiety was closing.

It was the belief of the Government that steady progress towards order and stability in China could only be maintained by the promotion of good relations between China and Japan and by co-operation between those two countries and other countries having similar interests and aims. The maintenance of the principle of the open door coupled with a full recognition of China's right to control her own destinies remained the broad basis of British policy.

RELATIONS WITH AMERICA

In conclusion, Sir Samuel said the relations between Great Britain and the United States were excellent. It had been suggested that the United States had made offers to us and that we had refused them. There was no foundation for that criticism. If offers of co-operation were made to us they would always find a friendly welcome.

"We intended to maintain the pledges that we had given in our treaties and in the Covenant, and we were ready to work with Europe upon a basis of collective security. The friendships of the British Empire were not exclusive, and we gladly held out our hand to any country in the West or in the East that would work with us for stability and security, for justice and fair dealing, for peace and good will (Contd.)"

CINEMA TRADE NOTICES

"G MEN"

"G Men" First National's sensational picture written about the heroic deed of the secret service men in the United States Government Department of Justice, opens on Saturday at the Alhambra Theatre.

The picture is said to be one of the most thrilling and dramatic pictures ever presented, based on sensational newspaper headlines which have covered the front pages of all the dailies of America.

While the picture presents no names of the public enemies nor emphasizes any time or place of the actual battles, few will miss the actual connection of the occurrences that take place.

The production is enacted by an all star cast headed by James Cagney as the leading "G Men," the red-headed star having turned from crook roles to government agent. Margaret Lindsey has the leading feminine role opposite him.

There is an unusual number directed by Bobby Connolly in which scores of beautiful girls dance, with Ann Dvorak leading the chorus, and singing a song specially written for her by Fain and Kahal.

William Keighley directed.

THE GOOD FAIRY

Intimate glimpses of a great orphanage form a part of the earlier sequences of "The Good Fairy," the brilliant Universal comedy which is now at the King's Theatre with Margaret Sullivan and Herbert Marshall in the starring roles.

Miss Sullivan herself is an inmate of this institution, a photographically correct reproduction of the Municipal Orphanage for girls in Budapest, Hungary, and with a large number of her companions is seen at work in the kitchen of the refuge.

Here, "acting out" a fairy tale for the benefit of a group of the younger girls gathered about her, Margaret loses her hold on a swinging light and crashes to the floor coincidentally with the entrance of Beulah Bondi, the superintendent, and Alan Hale, a theatrical impresario come to select an usherette for his theatre.

Margaret is chosen for the position, and thus begins a series of highly dramatic adventures which befall a young girl entirely unaccustomed to the world and its pit falls.

More than 100 young girls were engaged for these scenes, which also show departments in which they are taught sewing, wood-working and other useful arts.

MORE GOLD FROM THE EGYPT

Success Of Suction Salvage

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18.
The salvage ship Artiglio is due to-day at Plymouth, where she will land gold bars and sovereigns valued at £45,000 recovered from the wreck of the liner Egypt off Ushant. This year's operations, which began in the last days of June, have been notable for the remarkable success attained with the apparatus for suction in deep water, specially devised by Sorima Company and already used effectively last year. The gold carried by the Artiglio has been recovered since July 4 by means of suction alone.

Of the original consignment on board the Egypt there has now been saved 80.9 per cent. of the sovereigns, 97.4 per cent. of the silver, and 98.25 per cent. of the gold bars. Such a result in recovering treasure from a wreck in the open sea, 400ft. below the surface, is an unprecedented achievement, and is especially remarkable when it is remembered that it was never possible for divers to perform any manual work under water, everything being done from the salvage vessel following directions received by telephone from the observation chamber at the bottom.

It is now seven years since the salvage operations were started. The wreck was definitely located on August 30, 1930, and on June 22, 1932, the first gold reached the deck of the Artiglio. By the end of that season treasure to the value of about £740,000 had been recovered. During 1933 a further quantity of gold and silver, valued at about £250,000, was saved, and last year the Artiglio raised treasure to the value of about £160,000.

PRINCESS ROYAL'S CURL CLUSTER

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18.
The Princess Royal has changed her Coiffure. It was done by Mr. Henri of Henri et Phillips, London, her hairdresser, who was summoned to Egerton Hall, Newmarket, where the Princess Royal was staying.

For the last few years the Princess whose long, beautiful hair has always been admired, has worn it parted on the left, and brought to the rear of the head with pins.

Her new style is with the parting also on the left, with the side combed back and ending with clusters of small curls. No pins are used, only small hair clips.

It is a fascinating style, a well-known London hairdresser stated, but has no particular name.

MODERN GIRLS

Responsibilities As Citizens

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18.
The belief that there was a craving among many modern girls for some sort of training in citizenship but that they did not know how or where to get it was expressed by Miss M. E. Popham, of the Empire Citizenship Training Council, at the Imperial Social Hygiene Congress in London yesterday.

"I believe," she said, "that there are many girls to-day who have had an average education which has not been sufficiently broad or purposeful."

"This is followed by some years of social life and gaiety, and then they do one of two things. They either wake up to the fact that they have some responsibilities as citizens but their minds are quite blank as to how to carry out these responsibilities, or else they do not realise what is wrong with their families and are discontented and dissatisfied with life."

SATIS WITH PLEASURE
"They are satis with pleasure, they object strongly to their families attempting to give them some guidance in life, and yet they are unable to direct their lives themselves."

"They feel that they should take up some sort of job, but the possibility of a voluntary career has not been put before them in early life."

"At this stage of their lives, then, they face the question, 'Are we going to marry or adopt a career?' and they are afraid of making a failure of both."

Miss Popham added that it was to help girls who were faced with these difficulties that the Empire Citizenship Training Council had been formed.

PIN-MONEY GIRLS
Lady Emmott said that it was greatly to be deprecated if girls took up social work with the desire to earn a little pin-money. If a girl's private resources were not large enough for her needs and she wished to take a job she ought to work for salary which was in accordance with the market value.

"This is a style," he said, "that has been widely adopted by the younger people."

UNRAVELS THE MOST MYSTERIOUS CRIME IN HIS CAREER.

Fredric March in Samuel Goldwyn's "We Live Again," a powerful and compelling drama, based on Leo Tolstoy's immortal classic "Resurrection," released by United Artists, offers March the role of the handsome young Russian prince who loves and betrays the peasant, Katusha, played by Anna Sten. "We Live Again" comes to the King's Theatre to-morrow.

WE LIVE AGAIN

When Director Rouben Mamoulian wanted to film a cavalry drill as a detail of Dmitri's wild and reckless life as a cadet in "We Live Again," the Samuel Goldwyn screen version of Tolstoy's "Resurrection," which brings Anna Sten and Fredric March to the King's Theatre on Friday, March refused a double for the stirring manoeuvres.

He said there was nothing the professional riders many of them former Cossack officers could do that he couldn't, and he proves it. "We Live Again," incidentally, is the third of a trio of March vehicles to be shown throughout the country almost simultaneously, and no three films could possibly offer an actor three more widely diversified roles or three such golden opportunities to prove his versatility and artistic ability.

BRITAIN'S FIRST £80 PLANE

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18.
An era of cheap flying for all is expected to be introduced in this country within a few weeks by the completion here of the first British "Flying Flea"—an aeroplane costing only £80.

Two Flying Fleas are being assembled here at the moment by five young men, one of whom is Mr. C. F. Brooke, formerly of the R.A.F.

The Flying Flea can take off with a run of only 110yds. and it can land at 20 m.p.h.

In fifteen minutes it can reach an altitude of 3,000ft. Its top speed is between 75 and 80 m.p.h., and it has a range of about 200 miles on an average petrol consumption of forty-five miles to the gallon.

As soon as the first engine is ready for installation, Mr. Brooke and his colleagues intend to test one of the machines at a local field before inviting Air Ministry officials to inspect it.

BURLINGTON HOTEL CLOSES

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18.
There was probably no more melancholy place in all Mayfair to-day than that old-world establishment, the Burlington Hotel, in Cork-street and Old Burlington-street, for to-night the hotel closes for ever.

Servants who have given many years of their lives to the service of this famous stopping-place for the nobility and gentry and the county families for 110 years were going about their jobs with sad hearts.

One employee, a floor waiter, has been there for 35 years, I was told by Mr. John O'Neill, the head porter, who himself has been employed for nearly 20 years.

The great Cecil Rhodes, who died 33 years ago, and that gay old monarch the late King Leopold of the Belgians, used to stay at the hotel, but few members of the staff remember them.

GREAT WRENCH
"It is just as much a wrench for the visitors who have been coming to the hotel—some for as long as 50 years to have to leave," Mr. O'Neill said, "Nearly all the visitors have left; there will be no one in the hotel at midnight."

Most of the hotel remains much as it was in Georgian days, when it was the palatial town home of Marquis Cornwallis.

The housebreakers will soon be at work, and when the old hotel has disappeared a block of flats will be built.

The whole of the furniture and effects will be sold by auction.

New Man on the Farm

A farmer sent his green, newly hired man out to plough a large field. Two hours later the farm-hand returned to the house completely exhausted.

"How do you expect me to hold that plough," he yelled, "with two big horses trying to pull it away from me all the time?"

BLIND DATE

At The Queen's

After a long interval we see Nell Hamilton again on the local screen, this time in the Columbia production, "Blind Date." This is a delightful comedy romance and others in the cast are Ann Sothorn and Paul Kelly.

The story is about an ambitious young motor mechanic who in his efforts to "feather his nest" neglects the girl friend with the result that she walks away from him into the arms of a wealthy playboy who she meets on a "blind date." It can be imagined what follows for complication after complication sets in though eventually everything ends happily for all concerned.

In the role of the wealthy playboy, Hamilton lives up to the high standard of acting that we have all long since learnt to expect from him while Paul Kelly, as the ambitious young mechanic also scores. Pride of place, however, goes to pretty Ann Sothorn who turns in an excellent performance. Others in the cast include Mickey Rooney, Spencer Charters, Jane Darwell, Geneva Mitchell and Tyler Brooke.

I LIVED WITH YOU

"I Lived With You" opening to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre will appeal to the majority of picture-goers because it depicts life as so many know it at home. The life of the Wallis family is the average life of the working-class family. Father and the girls are out earning their living and not doing so badly and "Auntie" assist "Mam" in the running of the house. It is an ordinary family, joggling along quite comfortably and living

MAINTENANCE CASE

Li Kam Ling, 47 years of age, summoned her husband, Tang Siu Lam, for maintenance yesterday at Central Magistracy before Mr. Q. A. A. MacFadyen.

Mr. M. A. da Silva appeared for complainant, while Mr. C. E. R. Sanderson was for defendant. Outlining the facts of the case, Mr. Silva said that complainant was the lawful "kit fat" wife of defendant. She married him in the country when she was 17 and they now had three children—a married daughter, another daughter 13 years old and an 8-year-old son. Defendant is a Chinese banker as well as a merchant and has a business, the Wang Fat Co., 13, Mercer Street. Not long ago, defendant took a concubine, who lives with him at 172 and 174 Lockhart Road.

Complainant used to live in the country and defendant had regularly sent money to her there. From 9th moon last year, onwards, he stopped the remittances and wrote a letter to complainant alleging that she had committed adultery. Mr. Silva went on to say that he understood from Mr. Sanderson that he would not mention the allegation of adultery as a defence.

Continuing his outline, Mr. Silva said complainant, not being able to get money from defendant, came to Hong Kong in January last.

Hearing was fixed for Tuesday morning.

CAR CLEANER FINED

At Kowloon Magistracy yesterday a motor car cleaner appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones on a charge of failing to comply with an order given him by an authorised employee of the Hong Kong Automobile Association. He was bound over in the sum of $15 for six months.

Mr. C. H. Dodson, supervisor of the Hong Kong Automobile Association, appeared as the complainant and stated that defendant had frequently been warned not to clean cars on the car parks without permission.

Giving evidence, Wong Leung, patrolman, stated that on Monday last about 11 a.m. he saw defendant washing a car on the car park near the Peninsula Hotel. Witness told defendant to go away, and he did so, but returned again at noon. Witness again sent the man away, and he returned again between 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. This time defendant was seen by Mr. Dodson and was arrested.

Mr. Dodson stated that he was passing through the car park at Middle Road when he saw defendant cleaning car No. 3447, so he arrested him. Witness had seen defendant before and had offered him employment in the Association, through an Indian patrolman.

Addressing defendant the Magistrate said: "As you have already spent two nights in gaol, I gather you know now that you are not to do this."

FALSE PRETENCES

When Tong Kwok Lam appeared before Mr. MacFadyen yesterday morning he pleaded guilty to charges of using false pretences to obtain the sum of $4 from Fung Yuen, aged 28, a bean curd maker, by purporting that he could obtain employment for complainant, when in fact he was not in a position to do so, and of using false pretences to obtain the sum of $2.80 from Cheng Man, aged 48, also a bean curd maker, by purporting that he could obtain employment for complainant when he was not in a position to do so, and was sentenced to six weeks hard labour on each charge, the terms to run consecutively.

Det. Sergt. Powrie who prosecuted stated that complainants had been telling defendant that they needed employment, and defendant promised to get them jobs as bricklayers with the Lee Cheung firm of contractors, of China Building, if they paid him certain sums of money.

On July 25, second complainant gave defendant $1, and on July 28, gave him another $1.80. First complainant gave defendant $3 on both occasions. Time passed, and as the jobs were not forthcoming they handed defendant over to the police. Defendant was unemployed, and in no position to obtain employment for other people.

PRISONER'S DEATH

An inquest into the death of Lam Tim, a 23-year-old male prisoner in the Victoria Gaol, whose death occurred at 4.30 a.m. yesterday was conducted by Mr. Q. A. A. MacFadyen at Central Magistracy yesterday.

The jury comprising Messrs. A. Morse (foreman), G. R. M. Ricketts and F. J. Neves returned a verdict of death from natural causes.

H. Barrett, chief warder of the Victoria Gaol said that on June 17 last deceased, prisoner No. 18222 was admitted to gaol. He was sentenced to serve 3 months' in prison. On June 28, deceased was admitted to the Gaol hospital, where he died yesterday morning at 4.30. The body was identified in the presence of Dr. Shaw.

Dr. G. I. Shaw deposed that deceased was admitted to the gaol hospital on June 28. He was examined and found to be suffering from tuberculosis. He sank rapidly and died yesterday at 4.30. Death was due to generalised tuberculosis combined with another disease.

DOG SUMMONSES

Several dog-owners appeared before Mr. MacFadyen at the Central Police Court yesterday on summonses for allowing their dogs abroad without muzzles.

Mr. Quark, of 47a, Robinson Road, was fined $10 for allowing his white dog in the road without a muzzle on July 8. Defendant denied the offence, saying the dog was in the garden of his house most of the time, but admitted losing sight of it for a minute.

A constable in evidence said he saw the dog in Robinson Road, and, following it, saw it go into No. 47a, the door of the house being ajar.

Miss Russell, of 47a, Kennedy Road, was fined $5 on admitting a summons of allowing her dog abroad without a muzzle on July 19. A representative appeared for defendant.

K. Y. Chan, of St. Joseph's Building, Robinson Road, was also fined $5 on admitting a summons of allowing a black and white terrier bitch abroad without a muzzle. A representative said the dog followed the servants out of the house in the early morning.

EVADING DUTY

Answering a summons before Mr. Schofield yesterday for having an improperly stamped receipt for $73.62, received for Singon & Co., 37 Hing Lung Street, on June 15, last year, Chin Sik Chor was ordered to pay a fine of $5.

On summonses for splitting accounts of $23.78 and $31.78, Man Sang Cheong, of 126 Second Street was fined a total of $20.

On the application of Sergeant J. G. Whitcroft, who appeared for the prosecution, a summons against Tin Hing Wing, of the Wing Kee firm, 9 Wing Fung Street, for having an unstamped receipt for $22.40, received from Man Tak, 42 Hennessy Road, Wanchai, was withdrawn.

Three weeks' hard labour was passed upon Chan Fai, 27, unemployed, when he appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday for unlawful possession of a motor car pump at Shek Lung Street, near Canton Road on Tuesday. Defendant said he took the pump from the Lai Cheung engineering shop, the master of which had run away to evade paying rent. He further alleged that the foks and the master of the shop had told him to go to the shop and take away any odd scraps of iron to sell.

An unemployed man, Lo Hop Ping, appeared before Mr. MacFadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday on charges of unlawful possession of two radiator caps at Hollywood Road, and theft of a radiator cap. Two other charges of theft of radiator caps were withdrawn. Det. Sergt. Gould said defendant was arrested in Hollywood Road with the caps in his possession. On the first charge, defendant was fined $50, or one month's hard labour, and on the other charges was sentenced to three months' hard labour each, all the terms to run consecutively.

BAD TEMPERED WOMAN

Another case of assault was brought before Mr. Wynne-Jones, the defendants being Chau Ma Chiu, 24, a barber and Lo Sam, 35 married woman. Sergeant Spiers said that the first defendant, stated that she had been indecently assaulted, and she then lost her temper and struck the unfortunate lad with her wooden clog.

Both were arrested and taken to the Police Station.

First defendant was discharged after telling his story, but Lo Sam was fined $25 or six months. His Worship told the defendant that she was a bad tempered old lady and that when walking along a pavement is bound to be bumped into at sometime, but she must not go chasing people with a clog. In fact he added that she should leave her clogs behind next time.

Found loitering on the stairway of No. 171 Tung Choi Street at 2 a.m. yesterday, Chan Fong, 25, unemployed, was brought before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday and sentenced to six weeks' hard labour. Detective-Sergeant Allen said defendant was seen by a Chinese detective on the stairway. The detective lives at that address and was going home. He asked defendant what he was doing there and the man said he was looking for a man named Chan Kwai. Defendant was asked which flat the man lived on and he pointed to the flat of which the detective was the principal tenant. The detective told defendant that no such man lived there and arrested him.

Two men, Leung Kuen, 21, a feld, and Chan Hing, 20, a licensed rickshaw driver appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones for fighting in Nathan Road near Mody Road, at about 8.45 on Tuesday morning. Traffic Sergeant Jamieson stated that Leung Kuen whilst riding a bicycle collided with the second defendant and both agreed to make a report at the Police Station but after walking a little way up Nathan Road near Mody Road they began to fight and were arrested. His Worship in imposing a fine of $10 each or six months, told the defendants to try not to act like small boys in future.

VERDICT OF GUILTY RETURNED

Counterfeiting Case At The Criminal Sessions

Stating that they were the worse gang of liars and scoundrels he ever had the misfortune to encounter, Mr. Justice R. E. Lind-sell, the Pains Judge sentenced four Chinese who were arraigned before him at the Criminal Sessions yesterday, to terms ranging from 6 years with hard labour, to three years.

Accused were Yeung Ping, alias Yeung Hon-kee, Tsang Ming, alias Tsang Hop-wing, Wan Cheung and Tsau Chuen, and they were charged with (a) counterfeiting 15 Hong Kong silver dollars and 15 ten-cent pieces; (b) possession of moulds for coining; and (c) possession of counterfeit coins.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, assistant Attorney-General, instructed by Mr. W. J. Lockhart-Smith, assistant Crown Solicitor, appeared for the prosecution, and the accused, who pleaded "Not Guilty," were not legally represented.

The jurors empanelled were: E.C.A. Proulx (foreman), Chan See-ming, Sun Him-lai, R. G. Griggs, P. M. X. da Souza, E. O. P. Hyndman and Pau Man-lok.

At 5:45 p.m. the jury retired to consider their verdict. Five minutes later they returned, and the foreman informed His Lordship and they had found all four accused guilty.

Addressing the Court, His Lordship said that the jurors had very rightly found the accused guilty. The offence was very serious, and they were the worse gang of liars and scoundrels he ever had the misfortune to encounter. First accused appeared to be mainly responsible and for this reason he would sentence him to 6 years with hard labour. Second and third accused were sentenced to 5 years each with hard labour, while the fourth prisoner, because of a tribute given in Court by a former employer, as to his good character, was sentenced to three years with hard labour.

In dealing more leniently with the fourth accused, His Lordship said that though he apparently was of good character, he had fallen into bad company.

RENTED A FLAT

The prosecution continued their case with the evidence of Chan Yau, a Chinese woman who said that on May 24, the third accused with one other whom she did not know, rented a flat from her. A receipt was handed to this man as the money for the flat was given to her by him, while Li Kee, the principle tenant of 30, Po Kwong Road, said that the second accused was a sub-tenant of his since May 4. The Police came on May 30 and he produced a bottle of acid from under the foot of the stairway opposite the doorway, as he knew that the accused had stored it there. It had been hoarded away at that precise spot, some three or four hours before the Police visited his flat. He (witness) did not know the contents of the bottle although the contents of a similar bottle had been split some days previously, which had eaten into the rattan work of a basket in which it was contained, and also ruined some clothing.

INSPECTOR'S STORY

Sub-Inspector Cunningham, who was in charge of the raiding party said that he saw the first, third and fourth accused arrested in the front cubicle (where the paraphernalia for counterfeiting was found) while the second accused was in the custody of a Chinese detective elsewhere.

Formal evidence of reading the charges to all the accused was given by Fu Yuk Ching, a police interpreter, who said that they were all charged separately, and signed their statements made that day. This was on May 31.

DANGEROUS CHARACTER

All four of the accused then elected to go into the witness box. First accused said that he was a friend of Li Tam (who was arrested by the Police and subsequently released). This man was a dangerous character, said the first accused, and had got him into trouble. This was because of a grudge Li Tam had against him, as he (accused) knew something against him, and Li Tam was always afraid that he would disclose all that he knew to the public. Li Tam rented the floor with the express purpose of getting him (accused) into trouble. Some time in the twelfth moon (of the Chinese year) Li Tam had asked him to take part in a crime of arson or murder, and he had refused to accede with this request. When arrested by the Police, he (accused) was on the premises in question, merely because he had gone there to collect a dollar that Li Tam had promised to give him for some work he had done for the former.

PACK OF LIES

Cross examined by Mr. Fraser he denied that 20 cents were found on him, refusing the evidence given in Court by Sgt. Goodwin. "Then Sgt. Goodwin is a liar" asked Mr. Fraser, and witness agreed that this was so.

When he (accused) in turn was accused by the Assistant Attorney-General with telling a whole pack of lies, prisoner answered as he was in the hands of the Police, he could not make any statement other than that which he had made, even if he had desired to do so, because he was promised a lighter sentence if he did as they said.

Second and third defendants also alleged that they were forced to make the statements they had given in answer to the charges preferred against them, while fourth accused called Chueng Hing, a former employer of his to give evidence of his (accused) good character.

GOOD WORKER

The former said that accused had been in his employ for some time and was a good worker. So far as he was aware, accused had a good character and he had no cause to complain against him.

SUMMING UP

In summing up, His Lordship said that there was no doubt there was paraphernalia found on the floor in question, which could be utilised for counterfeiting coins.

If they (the jury) believed the stories of the accused, they must, as a matter of course, disbelieve the Crown's case against the prisoners. In his opinion, the latter's case was more reliable, but if in their opinion they were convinced that the accused did not take part in the counterfeiting, then they must return a verdict of "not guilty." If there was any doubt whatsoever, then the accused must be given the benefit of the doubt.

The jury then retired for five minutes, and returned their verdict as stated above.

SEVEN SISTERS FESTIVAL

An Exhibition At Sincere's

To mark the festival of the "Seven Sisters" Festival, the seventh day of the seventh moon of the lunar calendar, which falls on Monday, August 5, an exhibition is now being held on the roof garden of the Sincere Company, where a large variety of articles of particular interest to the maidens of China, are on display.

The exhibition, which is splendidly arranged, is divided into several sections, namely, a modernised silk village, a sericulture show, needle-work display and rare Chinese plants, paintings and curios.

One of the outstanding features is that the majority of the exhibits were displayed on artistic stands, arranged and designed by experts of the Company. From what was seen of the last minute preparations, the exhibition will undoubtedly be one of the most elaborate of its kind ever staged in the Colony.

Special mention should be made of the Sericulture Show, which is being held in commemoration of the Empress Lai. Chao's skillful achievement in the invention of silk about 5,000 years ago. The various stages of silk manufacture should prove of great interest.

The exhibition will continue for ten days from July 30th to August 8th inclusive, and will be open to the public from 8 a.m. to 12 midnight each day.

OPIUM AND TARO

Aged Chinese In Court

Before Mr. W. Schofield at Central Magistracy yesterday, Au Lee, 66 years of age, partner of the Kwong Lee Vegetable stall at Central Market, and Tang Kam, salesman of the same stall, were both charged on two counts of breach of the Opium Ordinance. The charges were that of possession of 1,380 taels of raw opium and importation of illicit opium.

Mr. Leo D'Almada, Sr. appeared for the first defendant, while the second defendant was represented by Mr. F. H. Loseby. R. O. Grimmit prosecuted.

In outlining the case, the officer for the prosecution said that the first defendant was a partner in the Kwong Lee Vegetable stall at Central Market, while the second defendant was No. 1 salesman of the same stall.

IN TWO BASKETS

On July 26 last, the s.s. San Man Hing arrived from Macao and went alongside the Saigon Wharf. Two coolies went to the steamer to carry two baskets of vegetables sent to the Kwong Lee stall. One of the baskets containing cabbages were carried to a lorry which stood outside the wharf, and while the coolies were carrying the second one on the wharf, a Chinese Revenue officer stopped them, he having been previously informed. The coolies produced two letters to the consignees (the defendants' stall). The Chinese Revenue Officer took some of the taro aside and saw a straw package, and leaving the package untouched, he sent a messenger to tell the C. P. O. Butler, who examined the package but did not open it. He went to the lorry outside the wharf to examine the basket which was on it, but found nothing of an unlawful nature. The coolies were then told by C. P. O. Butler to carry the baskets to the Kwong Lee Vegetable stall, and on arrival there, the second accused was awakened. He admitted that the baskets were for his stall, but denied that he knew anything about the opium, which was then exposed from the two packages.

The first defendant who lives in Gilman Street, was called to the market, and he also denied he knew anything about the opium. C. P. O. Butler had gone once to the market before the baskets were brought by the coolies, but he found the doors were closed.

DRUG NOT EXPECTED

Mr. D'Almada, submitted to His Worship that some people had been clever enough to import to Hong Kong from Macao the raw opium in question with the taro. The basket could be brought to the market, and on the next day, some one will come to market and there buy the whole basket of goods with nobody getting any the wiser. Mr. D'Almada, said that he suggested that solution. He went on to say that if his client, or Mr. Loseby's client, were aware that the opium would be imported they would get ready to receive it, but both of them were fast asleep when the goods were delivered in the market.

On July 28th in the afternoon, Mr. D'Almada said he understood that R. O. Grimmit and C. P. O. Butler went round to the premises of the defendants and made a thorough search but they could find nothing incriminating. Mr. D'Almada, then submitted that if His Worship had any doubt, he should discharge his client.

NO CASE TO ANSWER

Mr. Loseby submitted that his client, the second defendant really had no case to answer. He was never in possession of the goods. They were taken over by C.P.O. Butler right from the steamer, and that if it had not been for the C.P.O.'s intervention, the goods might have been brought to some other place.

Au Lee, called to the witness box, gave evidence to the effect, that he did not know anything about the business of the stall, except that he looks after the cash.

The case was then adjourned, the next hearing being fixed for 2.30 p.m. to-morrow.

THE TYPHOON

The typhoon which threatened the Colony on Tuesday, passed to the North of Hong Kong as a depression yesterday morning, causing the No. 6 Signal to be lowered at 6.15 a.m. It was stated last evening that the depression was filling up near Wuchow.

SIR S. HOARE'S SPEECH

Opinion In Paris And Rome

(Special Air Mail Service)

Sir Samuel Hoare's statement on British foreign policy has been received with cautious approval in France and Italy, but is the subject of chilly comment in Germany, where the appeal for Herr Hitler's cooperation in realising the Eastern and Danubian Facts, is not popular.

It is hinted that the French Government are ready to begin negotiations on the Western Air Convention, provided that the five Locarno Powers take part. Italian comment, confined to the Abyssinian issue, appreciates the British recognition of Italy's need to expand overseas, but asks what Great Britain is prepared to do to facilitate, or at least not to impede, Italian aspirations.

Anglo-French consultations in which the British Ambassador, Sir George Clerk, is representing the Foreign Office, are proceeding in Paris. Their object is to further the peaceful direct settlement of the dispute between Italy and Abyssinia. These conversations with the French Government will continue in an atmosphere which has obviously improved since Sir Samuel Hoare's speech.

THE NEXT STEP

A question which will be discussed in Paris is the date of the next meeting of the League Council. When the 'Italo-Abyssinian Commission of four was formed the League Council decided to meet if the four arbitrators could not agree by July 25 about the selection of a fifth, and also if by August 25 a settlement by conciliation and arbitration should not have been effected. The collapse of the negotiations at Scheveningen, the departure of the arbitrators, and, above all, the Abyssinian Government's appeal for the immediate convocation of the League Council, furnish good reasons for an early settlement of the date of the Council's meeting.

Meanwhile it is felt both in London and in Geneva that the situation might be at least clarified if the Italian Government would formulate their grievances and their requirements more precisely.

A second and unexpected visit by General Kondylis, the Greek Deputy Prime Minister, to Signor Mussolini is believed to be connected with moves by the Duce to improve relations between Italy and Yugoslavia.

ITALIAN QUESTIONS TO BRITAIN

Sir Samuel Hoare's speech has on the whole been received here with courtesy and an evident desire to make the most of the points favourable to Italy.

Comments in the Italian Press are virtually confined to the Abyssinian question. The Foreign Secretary's statements that British policy towards Abyssinia has not been governed by considerations of self-interest, that Great Britain had not thought of applying sanctions against Italy, that Italy's desire for overseas expansion has always been understood, that the Abyssinian Government have not been blameless in their conduct, and that Great Britain is both mindful of her traditional friendship for Italy and is ready to reconstitute the unity of front established at Stresa, are so many points which are given prominence in the Italian Press and in verbal comments, and which are held to hold out prospects of a more satisfactory situation.

Of these various points that which has given the greatest general pleasure is the recognition of Italy's need for expansion. Such expansion, it is affirmed on all hands, is an absolute necessity. The 9,500,000 Italians now working abroad are pointed to as the supreme proof of the necessity. It is declared that it is no longer tolerable that Italy's labour should go to enrich foreign lands, and the doctrine is laid down that "where the Italians shall in future go in search of work and fortune there the Italian flag ought to fly."

EUROPE AND AFRICA

On the other hand, it is noted that Sir Samuel Hoare carefully abstained from venturing into the future and from defining, in any detail what are the intentions and future moves of his Government. Several of his statements, when put alongside one another, are found to be apparently contradictory and to require further elucidation.

Professions of friendship are all very well, it is in effect being said to-day, but let us have some concrete proofs of this British good will. What measures is Great Britain prepared to take to facilitate, or at any rate not to impede, Italian aspirations of expansion? How far is Great Britain prepared to follow by juridical sanctions the misdeeds of the Abyssinian Government? When Sir Samuel Hoare speaks of reconstituting the Stresa front, he must not forget that the Abyssinian dispute has now introduced a new factor into the European situation. And how does he reconcile his statement with Mr. Eden's subsequent defence of his action in not informing the French Government of the "absurd proposals" which he was taking with him to Rome? Italy, it is said, sympathizes with Great Britain in her policy of the collective system for maintaining peace in Europe, but European collaboration entails also collaboration in Africa, and in Signor Gayda's phrase, "It would be absurd that between Europe and the cause of peace, between Italy and Great Britain, there must intervene the opaque diaphragm of savage Abyssinia."

MAJOR HO

Wins Further Honours

The many friends of Major Shal-lin Ho, the younger son of Sir Robert Ho-tung, will be interested to learn that he has graduated from the well-known American Staff College, the Command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, U.S.A.

Receiving his early education in Queen's College, Major Ho left the Colony some years ago and spent about two years at the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich. He then took a tank course at the Artillery School for officers at Larkhill and upon completion of this Major Ho returned to the Colony for a short while in 1923. After a short stay here he went to the Ecole d'Application d'Artillerie at Fontainebleau, spending three years at this celebrated military school which was founded by Napoleon.

On the completion of his course in France, Major Ho returned to the Far East and was for a while with Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang. Then, in order to widen his military knowledge, Major Ho decided to concentrate on staff work and in 1932 went to Fort Leavenworth, U.S.A. from which he has just graduated.

Major Ho is expected to return to Hong Kong in about September. He is at the moment visiting Shanghai and renewing old friendships.

AN APPRECIATION

As an old friend of Miss McKie's, I would like to add a few words to your obituary notice.

Miss McKie had a large circle of friends and acquaintances amongst the European community who will remember her as a woman of great charm and personality, especially those who knew her when she first arrived in Hong Kong. Miss McKie had a great sense of humour and a large number of people will remember the advertisement she inserted regarding the loss of her Persian Kittens about three years ago.

OLD FRIEND.

CHINESE ART EXHIBITION

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18.
Arrangements are now well in hand for the Chinese Art Exhibition, which opens at the Royal Academy in the autumn. Towards the end of this month the British cruiser Suffolk, at present on the high seas, will disembark what is probably the most costly cargo ever sent to London—about 100 steel-lined cases containing thousands of priceless objects of art, most of them chosen from the Peking Palace collection. Public and private collections in America, on the Continent, and in the British Isles have also been searched for suitable exhibits. The display will give Occidental peoples their first opportunity of obtaining a comprehensive insight into Chinese art and culture from earliest times until the beginning of the eighteenth century.

HONG KONG, AUGUST 1, 1935.

ESSENTIALS OF NAVAL SECURITY

Due to a number of reasons, but primarily to the fact that hopes of another Naval Treaty on the lines of the Washington and London Treaties are now definitely and universally abandoned, naval questions and naval policies are being studied with a new eye just now at all the Admiralties. The plan of limitation by ratio will not be renewed when the existing treaties expire at the end of 1936, and after that if there is to be any limitation at all, it will have to be on an entirely different basis. Happily, however, that does not mean that there will not be another naval conference or even that the prospects of such a limitation are poor. On the other hand the British Admiralty are optimistic that the invitations to such a conference will be accepted by all the Naval Powers. They also hope that the Agreement concluded recently between Britain and Germany may provide the clue to the solution of the extremely intricate problem of limitation. Above all what Britain has to determine in present world conditions is the guiding principle or principles on which she should estimate her own naval needs. As conditions change this problem has continually to be re-examined and it is not notorious that they have been radically transformed during the last few years? There has been a rapid development of naval strength in the Pacific culminating in the virtual transfer of the American fleet to Pacific waters and in this direction the considered opinion of the British authorities is that this constitutes an effective guarantee for peace of the Far East, and that it does away with all necessity for Britain to take American naval strength into her account when making up an estimate of her own requirements.

This view has been expressed in general terms by many leading British statesmen since the war and to-day it is understood to be accepted by the Admiralty as a guiding principle of policy, more so as the United States holds that an adequate British naval strength in the Eastern Atlantic is a prime factor in the preservation of peace.

In other words Britain is prepared to watch with equanimity the completion by the United States of the colossal Vinson programme which aims at having every ship in every category under age and consequently more effective. Quite apart from that, however, the most important revelation of Admiralty intention made recently is that Britain will no longer be content with the maximum of 50 cruisers but will raise this number, as soon as possible, by ten. Even at that figure, it will still be 10 below the 70 maximum declared by Admirals Jellicoe, Beatty and Keyes six years ago to be absolutely essential to our naval requirements, but in spite of this we have tied our hands at the London Conference, at the same time leaving the hands of others absolutely free, and what is even more pathetic, 27 of our 50 cruisers will pass the age limit next year and will consequently have to be scrapped. Safety, therefore, demands that we follow without delay the lead with others have set. So long as they are on high seas, our food supplies depend for their safety primarily on our cruisers. It will perhaps be recalled that we paid a bitter price during the last war for our shortage in this respect and yet this is the arm where, in the vital comparison of effective vessels, we have fallen farthest short of adequacy.

This indication of Admiralty policy, therefore, should be heartily welcome and to the rumours of a British intention to withdraw from the Mediterranean, the declaration that the British Mediterranean Fleet is to be reorganised and to consist of five "sister" battleships and three "battle" cruisers, should supply the most emphatic confirmation.

YORKSHIRE OUT FOR 31

Collapse Against Essex

London, July 31. There was amazing cricket at Huddersfield to-day where Yorkshire, who scored 221 against Essex in the earlier match, were all dismissed for a paltry 31 by Essex. Herbert Sutcliffe who scored 135 runs against Notts, made only four runs on this occasion, while Leyland was dismissed "for a duck" and Barber scored only one run. Read, at present the fastest bowler in England, was responsible for their downfall. His average was six overs, one maiden, eleven runs, six wickets. Nichols bowled six overs, two of which were maidens, and he gave away 17 runs in taking four wickets. The weather was fine and the wicket quite good.—Reuter.

APPRECIATION IN FRANCE
M. Laval And Air Pact

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18. Cautious satisfaction is the keynote of most French comment on Sir Samuel Hoare's statement in the House of Commons. The tone and manner of the speech are generally recognized as admirable, and there is relief and gratitude at the Foreign Minister's straightforward and friendly references to France. The majority of French observers detect a welcome desire to remove French misgivings and to return to the principle of close collaboration between the Western European Powers which was laid down at Stresa and seemed in some quarters to be weakened by the new departure in the naval sphere. Though they appreciate his attitude, French commentators are still somewhat suspicious of Sir Samuel Hoare's ultimate intentions, and some of them cautiously advise their leaders to reserve judgment until this British declaration is followed by acts.

As was to be expected, Sir Samuel Hoare's justification of the Naval Agreement is the part of his speech about which French comment is most sceptical. Comparison of that agreement with the Franco-Russian pact is criticized by such an authority as M. Vladimir d'Ormesson, who writes in "Le Figaro" that no parallel exists between these two documents from any point of view. M. d'Ormesson defines the Franco-Russian pact as "a pacific instrument, born of serious consideration of the contractual obligations of the League of Nations" and the Naval Agreement as "the unilateral breach of a treaty." M. d'Ormesson also does not agree that the Naval Agreement leaves France a superiority of 43 per cent over Germany at sea; but he admits that he is no "technician" and it may be noted that French naval experts do not seem to agree with him.

After the reference to the Naval Agreement, the passage in Sir Samuel Hoare's speech which received most attention here is that which confirms the possibility of an air agreement. Here again, French fears of separate action by Great Britain are not entirely overcome, but the assurances of the Secretary of State are noted with satisfaction. From a quarter in close touch with M. Laval comes a hint that the French Government are ready to begin negotiations on this question provided that the five Locarno Powers take part in them.

The appeal to Herr Hitler to make a contribution to the cause of peace by facilitating the conclusion of an Eastern pact of security and non-aggression naturally meets with French approval.

Sir Samuel Hoare's denial of the more sensational rumours about British suggestions in connexion with the Italo-Abyssinian dispute is also applauded, and the hope is expressed that this indicates a wise circumspection on the part of the British Government.

CHILLY GERMAN RECEPTION
Sir Samuel Hoare's survey of British foreign policy has had a chilly and detached reception here, its defence of the Anglo-German Naval Agreement alone being greeted with moderate warmth. Little or no response is evoked by the appeal for Herr Hitler's collaboration in realizing the Danubian and Eastern Pact projects, and the suggestion that Germany might herself take the initiative seems almost to be resented.

In parts of the Wilhelmstrasse there is a noticeable tendency to argue that the speech does not call for an early reply, and that Germany will be well advised to assume the role of a mere observer for the next few weeks. As far as the Danubian Pact is concerned, the German Government have never regarded the replies given by the French and Italian Governments early in March to its questions about the definition of non-interference and the conditions of intervention as satisfactory or adequate, and the repeal of the Austrian anti-Hapsburg laws, has clearly stiffened the German attitude. As for the Eastern Pact, the Franco-Soviet and Czechoslovak-Soviet military assistance treaties constitute, in the German view, an adverse and dangerous factor which can neither be approved nor overlooked. These treaties, says the "Börsen Zeitung," have "created a situation which renders incomprehensible the suggestion that we of all peoples, we the menaced, should disentangle it."

Herr Scheffer, in the "Berliner Tageblatt," contends that the situation has greatly changed since the Danubian and Eastern Pacts, and even the proposed Western Air Pact, first appeared on paper.

Hand on heart (he says), who in Europe holds the Danubian Pact to be as urgent a matter for the salvation of Europe as when it was freshly invented? As for the Eastern Pact, all sorts of things among them those extremely problematical alliances between France and Czechoslovakia and Soviet Russia, lie between Sir John Simon's question to Berlin from Stresa and July 11. Are these two highly problematical Pacts to be the cruel through which we must eat our way into the fairyland of the Western Five Power Air Pact?

All German commentators join in regretting that the Danubian and Eastern Pacts should have been given precedence over the Air Pact, but some are less kind than others in their interpretation of British policy. Herr Scheffer observes bitterly that "the latest Foreign Minister of the British Crown has fallen into the French line again, now that the Naval Agreement has come safely home to roost. This entirely corresponds with the requirements of British policy."

The "Börsen-Zeitung" says it fully understands the tactical reasons for Great Britain's striking up the old melody about the need of German good will and German responsibility for French and Italian ears.

These are the old tactics (the newspaper says) of steering sharply over to one side to-day, because one steered decisively and clearly to the other side yesterday, by which Great Britain endeavours to keep the middle course. But by asking Germany to "make a real contribution to the cause of peace" Britain has depreciated the value of the Naval Agreement and the German accommodation of which it gave proof, for few Governments in the same position as the German Government would have voluntarily proposed so great a limitation of their powers of defence as that entailed, for example, by their restriction of submarine warfare.

TIN COMMITTEE MEETING

Intense Interest Aroused

London, July 31. The International Tin Committee meeting will be held in Paris on August 9. This news arouses intense interest and conjecture as to the nature of the topics to be discussed and the hopes raised of an increase in the production quota will be the main point of the agenda.

Though the percentage of increase is dependent on the July statistical figures, many quarters believe it possible that any rise in the quota will be retrospective as from July 1 instead of October 1 in view of the extreme shortage of stocks which is largely responsible for the recent acrobatic performance of tin on the London Metal Exchange.

It is also felt that a generous increase in the quota will favourably influence the four signatory countries in the negotiations regarding continuation of the restriction scheme for a further period on the termination of the present agreement.—Reuter.

ITALIAN DELEGATION AT GENEVA

Fateful Session Of League Council

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894.
Received, July 31, 7:30 p.m.)

Geneva, July 31.

The eyes of the entire world will be centred on Wednesday on the League Capital which will be buzzing with excitement on the morning of the day when the League Council is scheduled to assemble for what may prove to be one of the most fateful sessions in its history.

The President of the Council, M. Litvinoff arrived here on Tuesday evening from Carlsbad, being followed a few hours later by the Italian delegation headed by Baron Aloisi, while Mr. Anthony Eden and M. Laval are expected to reach Geneva on Wednesday morning, thus affording the chief actors in the forthcoming drama ample time for preliminary discussions before the opening of the meeting at five o'clock in the afternoon.

League circles are chiefly occupied with conjectures as to the attitude the various delegates will take on the all-important question of procedure—whether the Council should limit itself to arbitration or to intervene directly in the dispute, which latter alternative would almost certainly lead to the withdrawal of the Italian delegation.

It is not considered unlikely that Britain will insist on the discussion of the fundamentals of the dispute if the attempt to reach a compromise should fail, and that in this event she may count on the support of other delegates, especially those of Austria, Denmark, Portugal and possibly Spain, while the South American representatives are expected to maintain a strictly neutral attitude.

Some quarters anticipate that M. Litvinoff and the Turkish delegate will propose that the two parties in the dispute should solemnly adhere to the Kellogg Pact as well as to Article Five of the Italo-Abyssinian Treaty of 1928, which provides that all matters in dispute are to be settled by arbitration.

The course of events commencing at five o'clock on Wednesday afternoon will prove just now near these conjectures are to the truth.

BEHIND THE SCENES

Geneva, July 31.

The fateful talks behind the scenes on the Italo-Abyssinian dispute began here with Mr. Anthony Eden seeing the Abyssinian delegate, Tacle Hawariat, who is the Minister in Paris, with the French adviser, at 11 o'clock this morning. At noon Mr. Eden saw the Italian delegate, Baron Aloisi, who previously had a long interview with M. Laval. Mr. Eden will lunch with M. Avenol.

It is understood that the conversations proceeded in good shape, but it is too early to say whether they promise to go well.

Italy's acceptance of the appointment of a fifth arbitrator to the Conciliation Commission has already been discounted. Mr. Eden wants something to satisfy public opinion that the Council will not allow itself to be side-tracked on the insignificant frontier incident and ignore the main issue.

POSTPONEMENT LIKELY

Rome, July 31.

There is a possibility of a postponement of the meeting of the League Council to-day owing to a further peace move reported to have been made by Signor Mussolini.

According to this not only is he prepared to waive his previous opposition to the League appointment of a fifth arbitrator but will also state Italy's case fully against Abyssinia at the subsequent meeting of the Council if conciliation procedure is exhausted. Italy is likely to refuse to make such a statement during the impending session of the League Council.

PROTECTORATE IDEA

The idea of a League protectorate over Abyssinia has received a cold shoulder and is described here as a "most strange proposition." The chief objection is that Britain and France with their big influence on the League will have too much to say in the administration of such a protectorate for Italian liking. It would amount in effect to a joint Anglo-French-Italian protectorate by three signatories of the 1906 treaty on which Signor Mussolini has already put down his foot.

Italy has gone too far ahead on the road to Abyssinia to welcome the prospect of others sharing in the fruits of her enterprise. One of her main ambitions is to obtain control of raw materials of which she is short.

ANTI-BRITISH FEELING

COUNTRY IN DANGER

Nation Responds To Call

Addis Ababa, July 31.

The war fever is rising. A million Ethiopians are sharpening spears and daggers, oiling rifles and revolvers, and refixing axes in preparation for the conflict. Even boys are learning to use spears and rifles. Women are preparing to take the places of the menfolk.

Italians continue to leave. A party of Italian Legation officials departed yesterday. There is now only one Italian woman in Addis Ababa. The Legation Guard accompanied the party on the train to Jibouti owing to the intense hostility of the Ethiopians.

The refusal of the Italian Minister to attend the Emperor's birthday is regarded as a deadly insult and certain circles are clamouring for rupture of diplomatic relations.

The Emperor desires peace. It can be obtained with honour. Everyone recognises his statecraft and that he is completely the master of the situation as far as Ethiopia is concerned.

According to reliable sources, the entire nation is rallying to the Emperor's call that the country is in danger and appealing to every man and woman, regardless of creed, to defend Ethiopia.

Complete ignorance prevails as regards the League's and Powers' intentions. A high official in an interview with Reuter said: "We trust Italy will not attack us. We fully realise the odds are against us, but apparently Mussolini has gone too far to recede."

Government circles here, providing for the creation of an International European Mandate over Abyssinia, under the auspices of the League of Nations. Under the Mandate no one power will be accorded any special privilege.

It is not revealed from whom the proposal comes, but it is assumed here that it is the joint endeavour on the part of England and France to find a way out of the present deadlock.

In principle, Negus would have no objection to European influence in Abyssinia, say well informed circles, but he would insist that such influence be confined to a purely economical sphere and neither to have a political character or pursue a political aim.

EDEN-LAVAL TALK

Paris, July 30.

Mr. Anthony Eden arrived here on Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Quai d'Orsay where he had a lengthy conversation with M. Laval concerning ways and means of steering the League of Nations clear of the pitfalls in the Italo-Abyssinian question, which might wreck the none too stable institution of the League of Nations.

Nothing transpired as to the decision taken but it is stated in informed circles that M. Laval will endeavour to assume the role of mediator without prejudicing France's friendship with Italy and England, which under the present circumstances appears to be a formidable task.

Earlier on Friday in the course of a Cabinet Council meeting M. Laval gave a survey of the present Abyssinian situation, and according to reliable information, he said that the situation is somewhat more hopeful in so far as the fundamentals of the dispute have been more clearly defined by the last Italian and Abyssinian statements.

Both Mr. Eden and M. Laval will leave for Geneva late on Tuesday evening.

CURRENCY INFLATION RUMOURS

London Views On China Situation

London, July 31.

The rumours of Chinese schemes for currency inflation are regarded in various light in financial circles. The majority point out that the Chinese situation is no worse than when the previous similar rumours were bruited and add that China is most unlikely to embark on any new currency adventures pending the visit of Sir Frederick Leith-Ross. Others are inclined to believe that inflation will ultimately be unavoidable, pointing out that it has already in some measure arrived with the artificial pegging of the Chinese dollar below the world silver value.

The present rumours are commonly attributed to the Currency Committee's proposals regarding nickel subsidiary coinage which is not regarded as likely to help Chinese finances. On the other hand it will possibly increase the lack of confidence among the public, as possibly portending to larger schemes of token coinage.

It is generally felt that an authoritative statement by the Chinese Government would be welcome in that it will finally dispel the rumours which will inevitably stimulate gambling and injure business.

It is understood that Sir Frederick Leith-Ross will be accompanied by a Bank of England expert on his mission. All agree that he goes to China with an open mind and he spent several weeks exhaustively studying the Chinese situation and did not attempt to formulate any plan of action pending his arrival on the scene.

Interested circles in China continue to canvas for various methods whereby China may be helped, though it is generally felt that one indispensable requisite is that she cut down her military expenditure and put the arrears outstanding on several loans on a sound footing.

The importance of obtaining Japanese co-operation is widely emphasised. Japan's present attitude as regards a loan to China is officially described as "unnecessary and untimely."

STERN GERMAN DENIAL

Bombing Plane For Abyssinia

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894.
Received, July 31, 7:30 p.m.)

Geneva, July 31.

The report circulated by a British news agency to the effect that a German bombing plane with a carrying capacity of fifty bombs, which was equipped with a 700 horse power engine as well as with gun turrets, had been forced down by Rumanian pursuit planes while flying over Rumanian territory on the way to Abyssinia, is categorically denied by the German Air Ministry which stresses that Germany does not possess such a type of airplane.

The British news agency's assertion that the machine was destined for delivery to Abyssinia is branded by the Ministry as a "malicious attempt to poison the political atmosphere" since no German airplane is on the way to Abyssinia and Germany is not supplying any war materials whatever to that country.

Copenhagen, July 31.

The result of the demonstration by the 50,000 peasants outside the Royal Palace on Monday when they protested against the apathy of Premier Stanning seems to have had some concrete effect.

A Cabinet meeting was called on Monday to consider the grievances voiced by the peasants and the Premier told the Press that in the existing circumstances it was extremely difficult to meet the demands.

The Premier concluded by saying that those taking part in the demonstration represented only 20 per cent. of the peasantry though much may be achieved if the peasants were to discuss the whole matter rationally.

BUILDING TRADE STRIKE

Hungarian Workers Dissatisfied

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894.
Received, July 31, 7:30 p.m.)

Budapest, July 31.

A strike began here last Tuesday when seven thousand workers in the building trade downed tools, demanding an eight-hour day and a forty per cent. increase in their wages.

The strike was called off on the same day when the Minister for Trade issued two decrees, one referring to the minimum rate of pay and the other making the forty-eight hour week compulsory.

All industries in which the wages were particularly low have now fixed a scale of wages which must, however, meet with the approval of the mixed committee appointed by the Minister for Trade. It was stated that both workmen and employers will be represented on this committee.

In certain specified trades the forty-eight hour week will not be applicable.

GUNN'S HUNDRED FOR NOTTS

Foils South Africans With His Captain

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18. The South Africans were denied the victory that had seemed within their grasp to-day at Trent Bridge. Notts saved the game handsomely, although the wicket had again an abnormal influence or it, for the South African bowlers were thwarted in their turn no less than Larwood and Voce had been previously.

The absence of Balaskas was also a handicap, so that it was not surprising when, facing a total of 512, they reached 305 for nine, and spent the whole afternoon in getting them.

Play ended at 25 minutes to six, immediately the deserving Gunn, by aggressive and defensive cricket, well blended, completed his first century of the season, and the South Africans did not bat again.

What a pity that a fixture which had promised so much achieved so little.

The South African mammoth of an innings had the briefest of tails, nor did it wag to any purpose, and the three outstanding batsmen were back in the pavilion in next to no time when play was continued at 4.46 for seven. Wade's grand knock—four hours, 21 boundaries—was ended in Larwood's first over to a slip catch at 4.59. Crisp cracked Larwood and Voce once each to the boundary, and then Langton had his middle stump uprooted, also by Larwood.

Balaskas did not bat—he is returning to London this evening for a specialist's attention to his sprained elbow—so that the South Africans, with nine wickets down, were all out for 512, and Notts, exactly 200 behind, were batting again as the Trent Bridge clocks chimed the hot golden noon.

By this time there were such deep pits at both bowling footholds that one of the umpires expressed to me his fear that a bowler's ankle would be in jeopardy. Crisp and Bell tried a round-the-wicket delivery; Crisp soon found the handicap too troublesome, but Bell persisted. Harris edged him into his stumps at 32, and before lunch Mitchell also had gone on at the pavilion crease and forced Walker also to play-on at 53, and tempted Keeton to give a catch to extra-cover 13 runs later.

NOTTS IN DANGER

At lunch, Notts were 94 for three, through a praiseworthy stand by Hardstaff and Staples. Soon after the defeat of Staples at 122, Hardstaff was caught behind the wicket by Cameron's deputy, Williams, who in this match has worn the gloves admirably. The partnership of Hardstaff and Staples had brought 58 precious runs, and the consequence of their departure was that Notts were put into a state of desperation, for they needed 72 to avoid defeat by an innings and only five wickets were still standing.

But Heane, who, like his predecessor, is a captain of grit and resolution, kept one end secure while Gunn made runs at the other end. Together they carried their side out of perilous waters through a stand that was unbroken at tea-time—that is, after 1 hr. 35 min., during which they scored 118.

Gunn reached his own 50 and the second 100 for Notts with the same stroke, and it also wiped out the possibility of the innings defeat. Heane became freer after his responsibility had thus lightened, and he too passed 50, the score at the interval being 248. He was caught on the boundary at 266—a splendid running catch—but he left a sense of security, especially as Gunn remained steadfast.

LANCASHIRE SCORE 176 IN 330 MINUTES

Lancashire had the brake on at Buxton, taking 330 minutes to score 176 runs for the loss of four wickets. In this way the champions succeeded in their ambition to avoid defeat at the hands of Derbyshire, but they provided a dismal sight for the crowd.

Watson and Hopwood altogether spent 80 minutes over 41, but Iddon and Paynter were even slower. Iddon got a single and then went half an hour before scoring, and Paynter was 40 minutes without making a run. Armstrong and Townsend tossed up some inviting deliveries, but nothing would induce the Northerners to do more than allow the ball to hit the bat.

New York, July 30. The Detroit Tigers and the New York Yankees, leaders of the American Baseball League, together with the New York Giants and the St. Louis Cardinals, the top teams in the National Championship, were all defeated to-day.

HOME CRICKET

Double Century By Woolley

London, July 30.

Yorkshire, leaders in the County Cricket championship, failed to reap the benefit of a lead of 169 runs in the first innings against Notts and had to be content with first innings points.

Kent secured a fine victory over Surrey with Woolley scoring a double century.

Leicester, Warwick and Sussex also took full points Lancashire were able to claim first innings points owing to Hampshire's collapse against the bowling of Sibbles.

DAVIS CUP

TENNIS

Clean Sweep By Britain

London, July 30.

Winning the two remaining singles matches, Britain (holders of the Cup for two years) made a clean sweep of America by winning 5-0 in the challenge round of the Davis Cup.

Allison served, drove and volleyed grandly for the first three sets but he was not able to hold Perry after that. It was not until the fourth set that Perry loosened his big guns and he then drove and volleyed spectacularly.

After losing the first set he won the second and third and then the fourth when Allison countered with a great stand in an endeavour to retrieve a lost situation.

The American pulled up to 3-5 but then lost two of the most brilliant and longest rallies of the match.

Austin produced the greatest tennis of his career in beating Budge to avenge his Wimbledon defeat.

The following were the full results of the challenge round matches:

F. J. Perry (Britain) beat W. L. Allison (America) 4-6, 6-4, 7-5, 6-3.

H. W. Austin (Britain) beat D. Budge (America) 6-2, 6-4, 6-8, 7-5.

G. P. Hughes and C. R. D. Tucker (Britain) beat W. L. Allison and J. Van Ryn (America) 6-2, 1-6, 6-8, 6-3, 6-3.

H. W. Austin (Britain) beat W. L. Allison (America) 6-2, 2-6, 4-8, 6-3, 7-5.

F. J. Perry (Britain) beat D. Budge (America) 6-0, 6-8, 6-3, 6-4.

Lancashire beat Hampshire on the first innings at Southampton.

Hants: 125 (Sibbles 7 for 48) and 347 (McConiff 150, Sibbles 6 for 75).

Lancashire: 239 and 164 for 6.

EXPORTS STILL GOING UP

Another Big Leap

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18. In every month of the first half of this year Britain's overseas trade has made good solid progress.

This is the pleasing picture which is completed to-day by the issue of the Board of Trade returns for June.

They show that June, like each of the five previous months of this year, has seen a further increase in our exports compared with the correspondent month of last year.

The first half of this year is thus concluded with exports totalling £208,475,191, which is £16,771,406 higher than in the first six months of last year and £31,185,434 up compared with the same period of 1933.

IRON AND STEEL

There is scarcely a single industry which has not shared in this upward movement.

Iron and steel is the largest individual contributor.

The outlook for this important industry for the rest of the year, incidentally, is particularly bright, as an agreement is now being negotiated which will give British firms an advantageous proportion of controlled overseas markets.

Machinery manufacturers have done well, under the stimulating influence of mining activity in South Africa, Australia.

Electrical engineers, too, have sent more of their products abroad, and even Lancashire's great cotton industry, beset as it is by acute Japanese competition, has been able to increase its exports.

Here are the main items from this table of progress for the six months to June last:

	(Exports)	(Increase)
Iron and Steel...	£17,963,228	£2,020,392
Machinery ...	£18,901,384	£3,564,472
Cotton	£30,213,778	£1,271,049
Electrical Goods ...	£4,384,159	£768,218
Woolen Goods ...	£14,617,335	£222,454
Chemicals ...	£10,039,248	£301,876

Imports Decline

Imports have declined by £2,809,502 during the past six months to £235,976,864.

The net result is that our visible trade balance has undergone a distinct improvement. The figures are:

Six Months To June 30	1935	1934
Imports	£259,376,864	£362,186,366
Exports	£206,475,191	£189,703,785

Balance £152,901,673 £172,482,581

June has wound up the half-year with an increase in exports of our own manufactures of £764,035, compared with June, 1934, at £32,914,110.

This is rather lower than the previous month's figure, a fact, however, which is readily explained by June's extra Jubilee holiday.

THE KING WITH HIS ARMY

Brilliant Spectacle At Aldershot

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18. In brilliant sunshine the King, with the Queen and his four sons, and in the presence of seventy thousand of his subjects, held a Jubilee review of nine thousand troops of the Aldershot Command—troops representing every branch of the Army.

The troops, the hundreds of brightly coloured parasols, the coloured dresses of the women, made the scene a great and memorable one.

THE NEW AND THE OLD

The King reviewed at Rushmore Arena the troops of the Aldershot Command, a representative section of the small Army which we maintain to-day to guard the peace won by the nation-in-arms in 1918. There were some 10,000 officers and men on parade, made up of a Cavalry Brigade, five Infantry Brigades, three horsed Artillery Brigades, and examples of the new era of war in three brigades of Mechanised Artillery, a battalion of the Tank Corps, and motor units of the Ordnance Corps and the Air Defence Brigade.

The Review was intended primarily to give to the King on the occasion of the Silver Jubilee of his reign, and to his people, some impression of our Army as it shows in the present stage of mechanisation. That called for the sacrifice of much of the element of pageantry and impressiveness. To the eyes of this generation, the chivalry of arms is still best to be communicated by man and horse caparisoned as for a festival, ready to confront death with gaiety.

WAR'S "DELIVERY VANS"

The grim effectiveness of the Tank, of the motor-drawn battery, hardly yet "gets over." Those huge delivery vans rumbling along might be carrying furniture of food for the suburban home, not potent forces of destruction. Those men sitting in the tenders of six-inch guns have some slight suggestion of soldiers on a charabanc trip. It was even to a civilian with some experience of war, a curious impression of the day that what was there most effective for attack and defence made less mark of dread on the mind than the splendid lines of infantry moving in close order, the cavalry and horsed batteries palpably eager to be up and at them in a rushing charge.

Enough was shown of the old order to throw into effective contrast the examples of the new. Dividing the review into three acts, the first was the Army of last century; the second was almost wholly of that old Army, with here and there examples of the new; the third was almost wholly of the new. The mingling of elements was effective, in its contrast value, though it had inevitably an element of incongruity.

But this was not designed to be the parade of a Division as it would march out to the field under the new dispensation: if so, it would have showed far more machinery and, in proportion, fewer men and animals. It was rather a suggestion that the British Army with its responsibility of facing defence tasks in all parts of the world (perhaps a future campaign in such terrain as that of Allenby's galloping rush across Palestine) cannot yet confide its destiny wholly to mechanisation; that our military policy must for a little while be preparedness for two types of warfare. Viewed in that light, the display was striking; and—from the mules of a mountain battery to the giant Tank neatly swerving off to allow its commander to "dismount" to join the officers at the saluting base—it was thoroughly efficient.

WELCOME FOR THE QUEEN

The Rushmore Arena, the natural amphitheatre, which is familiar as the scene of the annual Aldershot Tattoo, proved an ideal review ground. It gave comfortable accommodation and clear view to the many thousands of spectators; ample manoeuvre space and convenient entrances and exits for a type of review in which the troops were not drawn up in array at any moment, but defied past the saluting base.

The weather was a perfect example of the English summer. The spectators—the feminine element mostly attired in delicate pastel shade—made the frame of the arena a series of gay parterres. By comparison the picture of the troops in Service uniform was sombre.

The great assembly gave a warmly affectionate welcome to the Queen on her arrival, and a few moments later, to the King, as with the four sons of his House he came to the parade ground.

The 1st Cavalry Brigade had been drawn up in the arena facing the saluting base, and gave the Royal Salute as the King entered. Accompanying him and in attendance were the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Duke of Gloucester, and the Duke of Kent, all in Service uniform, the King's Indian Honorary Aide-de-Camp, Lieutenant-General the Maharaja of Patiala, G.C.S.I., Major-General Sir Umar Hayat Khan, G.B.E., Major-General the Maharaja of Jammu and Kashmir, G.C.S.I., the Military members of the Army Council, Field-Marshal Sir Archibald A. Montgomery-Massingberd, G.C.B. (Chief of the Imperial General Staff), Lieutenant-General Sir Harry H. S. Knox, K.C.B. (Adjutant-General to the Forces), Lieutenant-General Sir Reginald S. May, K.B.E. (Quartermaster-General to the Forces), Lieutenant-General Sir Hugh J. Elles, K.C.M.G. (Master-General of the Ordnance), General Sir John T. Burnett-Stuart, K.C.B., Aide-de-Camp General to the King, Major Hon. A. H. L. Hardinge, C.B., and Captain Lord Claude N. Hamilton, C.M.G., Equeries to the King.

THE MARCH-FAST

General Sir J. Francis Gatherer-Hardy, G.C.B., G.O.C., Aldershot, led the march past, headed by the 1st Cavalry Brigade with the 3rd Brigade R.H.A. in column of batteries, and of squadrons—a gallant display of chivalry, and no hint yet of mechanisation. Next marched units of the 1st and 2nd Divisions with artillery, sappers, signals, Army Service Corps, and Army Medical Corps represented the infantry in column of companies.

The familiar historic regiments, their colours recalling centuries of faithful service in all quarters of the world, each had some special friends among the spectators, but the mass of them responded best to the appeal of the Guards with that particular "panache" in their march, of the Kilted Cameron Highlanders, and of the Welch Regiment parading its goat mascot. The new era of mechanisation was slightly represented in this section of the parade by the Engineers with their motor lorry equipment and Signals with wireless motor vans, carrying their slender masts like quivering antennae of questing insects. That precision drill of the highest order is possible under mechanisation was shown by the line kept with these motors, a fact which the spectators recognised with applause.

The Infantry having passed, the stage was clear for a full display of the uncanny army of the future. First two mechanised brigades of Field Artillery "marching" in their motors with the sibilant murmur of a gentle surf on a shingle beach.

Pleading guilty before Mr. MacFadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday to the theft of a roll of wire, valued at 80 cents, the property of the Woo Lee firm of building contractors, at Des Voeux Road West near Queen's Street, Chan Muk, unemployed, was bound over in a sum of $50 for one year. Inspector Smith stated that defendant was arrested by a district watchman carrying the wire wrapped up in cloth. Defendant told the watchman he had taken it from the contractors.

Wong Cheung, 27, an accountant was brought before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon charged with larceny, by a servant, of $474.28 between February 4 and July 5, this year from a money changer by the name of Woo Fun. Detective Sergeant Downman appeared for the prosecution while Mr. J. M. d'Almeida Remedios was for the defence. The case, however, was remanded to Saturday owing to a witness being sick and unable to attend Court.

PRETTY ORPHAN GIRL

And Her Romance

Singapore, July 25.

This morning, a pretty 18-year-old Chinese orphan of the Po Leung Kuk Home, Singapore, will be married to a Chinese rubber tapper upcountry.

Two days ago, she blushed with pride because—

His Excellency the Governor, while visiting the home, displayed keen interest in the trousseau she had prepared.

It was while he was walking through the Home making himself acquainted with its work that His Excellency was told of the girl who was to be wedded.

The girl, Miss Lam Sai Nui, is an orphan. She came from China over a year ago and was taken into the Home.

There she learned cooking, sewing and housekeeping.

Some time ago, romance entered her life.

A man came to the Home. He said he wanted a wife.

He saw Lam Sai Nui, and she agreed to be his wife. The man went away happy, and the day of the wedding was fixed.

GOVERNOR'S TOUR

Cloth for the bridal dress, and the trousseau was bought for Lam Sai Nui, and her clever fingers became busy.

To-day she will be joined in matrimony with the rubber tapper from upcountry.

The wedding will take place at the Home itself. All her friends in the Home will wish her all happiness.

Sir Shenton was absorbed in the Home and its work.

His visit lasted over an hour, and he made a most comprehensive tour through the buildings.

He saw the girls busy in their classrooms learning all that turns them into useful women, learning things which make them into useful wives.

He was shown the diplomas some of the girls had been awarded at the recent Y.W.C.A. Hobbies and Handicrafts Exhibition, for their exhibits.

TEN DIPLOMAS

Ten diplomas came to the Home—looked upon as an achievement as the entries by the girls had been judged with those submitted by women of much more experience.

BIG DOUBLE BY WOMAN

Two 450-Mile Winners In Same Day

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18. One of the most astonishing doubles ever pulled off in the history of pigeon-racing has been accomplished by Miss M. Bates, of Guildford.

With 1,634 birds competing for 2350 in the London South Road Combine race from La Teste, about 450 miles, Miss Bates won the race, timing in one of the only two of the birds home on the same day (Saturday), although many others arrived on Sunday.

On the same day Miss Bates won the Bordeaux race of the Guildford W.F.C., about the same distance, with the only bird home on the day of loss.

Fanciers will be particularly pleased that Miss Bates has done so well, as they welcome women fanciers to their ranks, and, in addition, they realise that Miss Bates set herself a heavy task in endeavouring to live up to the reputation of her father when he decided to carry on with his good pigeons after his death several years ago.

BIG MONEY RACE

Mr. F. A. Carpenter, secretary, Bristol United P.C., is another secretary who proves that the onerous duties of such a post need not mean the neglect of one's pigeons. Mr. Carpenter has won from Rennes, Nantes and Maréennes this year.

Prizes worth £1,610 19s. were competed for by 1,949 pigeons in the Manchester Flying Club's open race from Maréennes—one of the biggest of the several important longdistance races decided over the week-end.

Prize money in the open race amounted to £1,250 19s. 3d. and in the members' event to £353 10s. 9d. The "plum" of the prizes is the £5 Maréennes pool, in which a cash prize of £250 2s. is offered.

One of the outstanding birds is that of Messrs. Dugdale and Roberts, of Morecambe, who clocked in at 6.9 a.m. on Sunday, flying 525 miles. This pigeon will undoubtedly beat one or two of the first-day birds further south.

A NEW FIELD-MARSHAL

Sir A. Montgomery Massingberd

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 18.

It was announced yesterday that the King had approved the promotion of Gen. Sir Archibald A. Montgomery-Massingberd, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, to the rank of Field-Marshal.

"Sir Archibald succeeds the late Field-Marshal Viscount Byng, who died one June 6.

Major-Gen. A. C. Temperley, our Military Correspondent, writes:

Sir Archibald Montgomery-Massingberd stood third on the list of Generals, those senior to him being Sir Charles Harington and Sir David Campbell. He succeeded Lord Milne as Chief of the Imperial General Staff on Feb. 19, 1933, after a very successful period as G.O.C. in Chief, Southern Command.

He went out to France as a junior staff officer, and after very rapid promotion became Chief of Staff to Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, who commanded the 4th Army.

The new Field-Marshal was with his Chief throughout the long-drawn battle of the Somme and the subsequent fighting in front of Amiens in 1917.

At the time of the German offensive in March, 1918, they were both at the Supreme War Council at Versailles. They returned later to re-create the old 4th Army, which was to play a decisive part in the victorious offensive in the summer and autumn of 1918. The battle of Aug. 8, that "black day for the Germans," as Ludendorff described it, was a monument to the genius of Rawlinson and his Staff.

Sir Archibald is 53. His home is Gunby Hall, Burgh-le-Marsh, Lincs.

Pleasant Thoughts

Wife—"Isn't it wonderful how the waves keep rolling in, darling?" Husband—"Yes, they remind me of the household bills at home, dear."

"SANATOGEN will soon put him right again"

Physicians know, by experience, how quickly and surely Sanatogen will build up strength in debilitated patients.

Whatever the cause of the weakness, be it illness, overwork or worry, Sanatogen cannot fail to do good. The phosphorus it contains is pure strength to the weakened nerve-cells. The albumin is nature's own building material of bodily power. It is the intricate combination of these two elements that has won Sanatogen the written recommendations of over 25,000 physicians.

And the splendid part of it is that Sanatogen is not only a true tonic-food, but also very easily digestible, so that the weakest patient, and the weakest stomach, can digest it.

Sanatogen must do you good. It does not interfere with any medical treatment, and every glassful brings you nearer to perfect health again. Shorten that tedious period of convalescence. Be strong and healthy again. You can if you start your course of Sanatogen today.

BERLIN SHAREMARKET

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Berlin, July 30.

Though cables from London and Amsterdam show that the crisis is overcome, the share market here did not respond, the business on Tuesday being confined to a very limited amount, and the price trend was erratic.

Fixed interest securities were likewise quiet but industrial debentures somewhat improved. Call money was at 3 1/4 to 3 1/2, being due to demands for monthly settlement.

GERMAN-BELGIAN AGREEMENT

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Berlin, July 30.

The agreement between Germany and the Belgium "Luxemburg" which is the Belgian Customs Union, concerning the trade payments published in the official gazette here on Tuesday, will come into force on Thursday, August 1.

Similar to the Anglo-German Pact of last November, the German-Belgian agreement abolishes the existing restrictions for the payments in foreign currencies, and guarantees the 75% of the value of German exports to the Belgium "Luxemburg" will be earmarked for payments for the "Luxemburg" imports to Germany, while a further amount will be set aside for the liquidation and other obligations. In case the German exports to Belgium exceed 14,000,000 reichsmarks per month, only 80% will be used for payment of the Belgium imports and other obligations, while 20% will be placed at the disposal of the Reichsbank.

The agreement may be terminated at one month's notice or without any notice if the basis on which the agreement was reached, change materially.
